

If 93% of all communication is nonverbal...

How do you know that your message is coming across on an audio call?

Interest in the person or topic is shown through dilated pupils, head nodding, or smiling. Facial expressions are the clearest way to illustrate mood.

Exaggerated arm movements can express passion or interest in a subject. They can also help engage and reinvigorate a conversation.

When people have their feet crossed, it can mean they are at ease.

Lack of eye contact can indicate that a person is not in favor of or is uninterested in a topic or situation.

Crossed arms close a person off to social influences and can be a sign that an issue may have gone unresolved.

Feet tapping can indicate a readiness to leave.

Get your message across. Use video conferencing.

Take the Tour

Check out the interactive Lifesize demo and see firsthand how lifelike video conferencing can help take your communication to the next level.